

LUTEZINE TO LUTE NEWS 116 (DECEMBER 2015): MORE VERSIONS OF DANIEL BACHELER & JAMES HARDING GALLIARDS AND JOHN DOWLAND N° 28, THE LUTE MUSIC OF TOBIAS KHÜNE, LORD ZOUCHE'S MARCH & ALBERT DE RIPPE PART 8: FANTASIE N° 12

Here are the remaining versions of the galliards by Daniel Bacheler in Lute News 116,¹ with two more closely concordant versions of DB20, one concordant version of DB30, and all ten more of the settings of DB25, his galliard 'To plead my faith'. The versions of DB25 are all in the same key and for 6 to 9 course lutes, found in eight English, of which 6 are ascribed, and three continental sources, two ascribed to Dowland in error. DB25a-h, the first six with divisions to the three 8-bar strains, are all closely concordant apart from being adapted for lutes with different diapasons and with minor but significant variants. DB25d-g also include ornaments, tenuto signs and dots for right hand fingering. DB25i-k are three identical continental settings (apart from one adapted for a 7th course in F rather than in D) probably an arrangement by Besard and copied from his print into the two manuscripts. This setting is similar to the versions in English sources, but the third strain is rather garbled. Also included are the two versions of Bacheler's setting of Dowland's Earl of Essex Galliard (DowlandCLF n° 42),² and a concordant version of Bacheler's setting of James Harding's galliard (DBapp3b), together with two different consort lute parts, a duet and four lute solo versions of a different setting of Harding's galliard in B flat (JH1-8).³ Mathew Holmes copied the strains of the latter only into his second lute book Dd.5.78.3, and copied divisions only into the third Dd.9.33 - merged here (JH2+3). Holmes also copied a version with different divisions into his fourth lute book Nn.6.36. The continental versions JH7 & JH8 look like duet parts for lutes a fifth apart but they do not fit well. A concordant source of the almaine DB35 is also included here.

JOHN DOWLAND extras⁵

Here are the six additional versions of Dowland's galliard (JD28) on Bacheler's galliard on 'To plead my faith' (DB25) to complement the one in Lute News 116. Five of the total of seven are ascribed to Dowland, the other two anonymous. Bacheler's setting precedes Dowland's in the ML lute book and follows it in the Euing lute book. All are in the same key and closely concordant, except adapted for 7-, 8- or 10-course lute, with ornaments, tenuto signs and right hand fingering dots in two. However three variants, one in each strain, suggest transmission of two distinct versions - one with simpler rhythms and hence possibly earlier in JD28e-g, and a later version with more dotted rhythms in JD28a-d.⁶ The versions in Elisabeth of Hessen's lute book (D-Kl 4^o.Mus.108 I) may have been copied from Fuhrmann (they share four errors) and both in the earlier group, but the errors are absent in the third member of the group, the version in the Euing lute book.

TOBIAS KHÜNE (1564->1614)

I have assembled the complete lute solos ascribed to Tobias Khün/ Kün (or Thobias Khüne as he signed himself), German court musician from Halberstadt, studying at Helmstedt University from 1576. He was appointed at the Wolfenbüttel court on 15 November 1587 as a singer at the court chapel and lutenist in the privy chamber of Julius Duke of Brunswick 1568-1589 with salary payments recorded up to 1591, but was fired following the accession of Heinrich Julius in 1589.⁷ Tobias Kun is named amongst eight distinguished lutenists in Germany in Gumpelzhaimer Gymnasma De Exercitiis Academicorum (Strasbourg, Zetzner 1621), p. 100. A fuga, two pavans and three galliards are ascribed to him, found only in prints and manuscripts of German provenance, but ascriptions of the same music to Gregory Huwet in other sources casts doubt about whether he composed all, or any, of them. Versions of a pavan and three galliards are in Fuhrmann's Testudo Gallo-Germanica published in Frankfurt in 1615 ascribed T. K., expanded to Tobias Kün in the list of composers in the preface. Two pavans and a galliard are in Rude's Flores/Florum Musicae published in Heidelberg in 1600 one ascribed T.K. and the other two Gregory Huberti, but to Khün elsewhere. Others are found in three manuscripts, a pavan probably copied from Fuhrmann but ascribed dullande in Elisabeth of Hessen's lute book, a galliard ascribed Tobiae Kühnen in Leipzig II.6.15, and a fuga and galliard ascribed Tobiae Kühnen/Tobiae in the lost lute book inscribed Joachim von Loss (D-Dl 1-V-8). Photographs of the latter have recently been found and so with the generous help of Joachim Lüdtke these two items are included here.

Gregory Huwet was appointed lutenist at the Wolfenbüttel court in 1591,⁸ and Khün's familiarity with the music of Dowland and Huwet suggest that he returned to Halberstadt, where Huwet lived and he may also have met Dowland when the latter visited Wolfenbüttel in 1594.

App5. D-Kl 4o.108 I, ff. 9v-11r Fuga 42

TK1a is a response to Dowland's Lachrimae (DowlandCLM n° 15), so the ascription dullande in Elisabeth of Hessen's lute book is presumably an error of association, but Rude attributes it to Huwet and Fuhrmann to Khün. Two concordant versions of the pavan TK2 are in Rude, one ascribed T.K. and the other anonymous. TK3 is ascribed to Khün in three versions and begins with a setting of the first strain of Huwet's famous galliard on the Walsingham tune,⁹ the second strain paraphrases Dowland's first galliard (DowlandCLM22), and the third strain is similar to the third strain of another Huwet galliard¹⁰ and Dowland's first galliard. Rude includes two arrangements of the same three strains, ascribing them to Gregorij Huberti, but maybe Khün made the parody of Huwet and Dowland's galliards. TK4 and TK5 are unique Italianate galliards ascribed T.K. in Fuhrmann, the first opening like a galliard by Santino Garsi da Parma,¹¹ and the second a doubtful attribution as the page headers for Fuhrmann's Galliarda 9 read Galliarda incerti Authoris. 9 (uncertain composer) on p. 118 and Galliarda T. K. 9 on p. 119. TK6, unique to the Loss lute book, is a highly accomplished polyphonic fuga and Joachim Lüdtke identified the title as referring to Martin Luther's

German paraphrase of the hymn Da pacem Domine, with an opening theme quite similar to Huwet's fantasia in Robert Dowland's Varietie. So Khün may have circulated music by Huwet and others rather than compose any himself, and so Fuhrmann included some in his print assuming it to be by Khün. App5 is included here as another fuga, anonymous and from Elisabeth of Hessen's lute book, with an ending reminiscent of Huwet's fantasia.

LORD ZOUCHE'S MARCH¹²

Here are all the settings of the English tune known as Lord Souch/Zouche's March/Mask, presumably dedicated to Edward la Zouche (1556-1625), 11th Baron Zouche from 1569 (pictured), diplomat and commissioner in the trial of Mary Queen of Scots in 1586.¹³ The tune is similar to All in a garden green that is in Lute News 116, and comes in four keys in a diversity of settings, including similar short statements of the two strains and some extended sets of variations, from continental sources including two Dutch prints and six German manuscripts. It may have been played in performances of the travelling English Comedians, accounting for its popularity on the continent.

ALBERT DE RIPPE/ALBERTO RIPA

This supplement ends with the eighth part in the series of the complete fantasies of Alberto da Ripa/Albert de Rippe, reproducing one of the three from Fezandat book III, known from six sources and a paraphrase.¹⁵ It has been transmitted in three different versions, one published in Milan in 1536 which was copied into Gerle 1552 and the Marsh lute book (differences in commentary), another published by Fezandat in Paris in 1554, and the third by Le Roy and Ballard in Paris in 1562 (differences listed in commentary), although the latter was probably a reprint of an earlier edition. It is one of de Rippe's shorter and easier fantasies and rewarding to play, but has not been recorded to my knowledge. All three versions are concordant except for more than 50 differences between 12a and 12b, mainly minor changes to the figuration but also insertion of three sections of extra bars (20-26, 100-108 & 201-210 in Fezandat); and 36 additional minor differences between 12b and 12c, except for three major differences: 4 bars 25-28 in Fezandat are substituted with 6 bars 25-30 in Le Roy; 9 bars 98-106 in Fezandat are inserted between bars 99 and 100 of Le Roy, and the theme that closes the fantasy is heard in part or whole 4 times in Casteliono, 7 times in Fezandat, and 18 times in Le Roy. The CNRS edition used the Fezandat version rather than the most elaborate version found in Le Roy, and all three can be compared here. Rippe12d paraphrases parts of the Casteliono version, and I have identified 23 of the 118 bars of Valderravano (bars 63-67, 70-83 & 21-23/115-118) that quote from the 193 bars of Casteliono (bars 38-42, 97-110 & 172-175). However, I wonder if this is a parody of a complete but now lost de Rippe fantasy by Valderravano that also happened to share material with the one here.

Measures 1-7 of the piece. The notation is in 3/4 time. The first staff shows a treble clef and a key signature of one flat (B-flat). The music features a mix of eighth and sixteenth notes, with some triplets indicated by a '3' over a group of notes. The second staff shows the bass line, primarily consisting of eighth notes and rests.

Measures 8-13. The notation continues with similar rhythmic patterns. Measure 10 features a triplet of eighth notes. The piece maintains its 3/4 time signature and one-flat key signature.

Measures 14-18. The notation shows a continuation of the melodic and harmonic themes. Measure 16 has a triplet of eighth notes. The piece is still in 3/4 time with one flat.

Measures 19-25. The notation continues with various rhythmic figures. Measure 21 features a triplet of eighth notes. The piece is still in 3/4 time with one flat.

Measures 26-30. The notation continues with various rhythmic figures. Measure 28 features a triplet of eighth notes. The piece is still in 3/4 time with one flat.

Measures 31-37. The notation continues with various rhythmic figures. Measure 33 features a triplet of eighth notes. The piece is still in 3/4 time with one flat.

Measures 38-43. The notation continues with various rhythmic figures. Measure 40 features a triplet of eighth notes. The piece is still in 3/4 time with one flat.
