The lute expels the sorrows from the heart,

Uplifting the weak, and by its sweet sound

Heals the wounded breast as it heals the broken heart,

Appeasing the sorrowful with merry sweetness

Uniting them, with its manifold chant

Overcoming hardened hearts and succeeding in the end

So that every maiden will dance with you.<sup>1</sup>

Acknowledgements

The author gratefully acknowledges Albert Reyerman for agreeing to publish this edition and Wayne Cripps for permission to use his tablature-setting programme TAB. Thank you also to the following for access to copies of original sources: Peter Király for CZ-Pmn XIII.B.237, Dieter Kirsch for D-Sl Mus.G.I.4, Stewart McCoy for DK-Kk Thott 841,4° and Tim Crawford for PL-

LZu D/H 6983. Microfilms of CH-Bu F.IX.70 and D-KA Mus.Bd.A.678, as well as colour digital images of A-Lla hs.475, were provided by the libraries that hold them. A microfilm of D-W Guelf.18.7 was loaned from The Lute Society of America, and facsimile editions were used for the music from D-B Mus.40141 and D-LEm II.6.15.

Introduction

This edition is the third in a series of editions of fantasias and recercars transcribed into French lute tablature from sources in German lute tablature. The present volume includes all ninetyone of the lute solos titled fantasia, recercar, fuga or similar notated in German tablature in manuscripts dated between c.1580 and c.1620, arranged chronologically by source.2 Some are found in more than one source, and in these cases all versions found in German tablature are included in this series so that the variant readings can be compared. In this volume four are represented by two versions in the same key (nº 28/45, 41/87, 47/49 & 67/80). The present volume also contains alternative versions for some of those in previous volumes of the series nine in Vol I (n° 28/45, 38, 41/87, 50, 59/60 & 83) and two in Vol II ( $n^{\circ}$  41/87).

Notation

The music in the manuscript sources used for this edition is notated in German tablature but is transcribed into French tablature here to render it more accessible, as few lutenists today sight read from German tablature.<sup>3</sup> German tablature employs separate letters and ciphers for each combination of fret and string or course of the lute. The music on the upper five courses is represented as numbers 1 to 5 for open strings

course: string:	8	7	62	61	5	4	3	2	1
open	 	4	1	4 or X	1	2	3	4	5
fret 1	-	-	Α	В	а	b	С	d	е
fret 2	-	-	В	С	f	g	h	i	k
fret 3	-	-	С	D	- 1	m	n	0	р
fret 4	-	-	D	Е	q	r	s	t	V
fret 5	-	-	Ε	F	Х	у	Z	7	9

Table of ciphers

and the sixth course is notated differently, probably reflecting the initial development of tablature for music to be played on a 5-course lute in the fifteenth century to which a sixth course was added later, requiring a separate notational system. For the first five courses letters are used for each fret in sequence from left to right continuing up the neck from the first to fifth frets. At the end of the alphabet (lacking j and u), ciphers resembling 7 and 9 are used as abbreviations for et and con (see Table of ciphers, above). For frets 6-10 the ciphers used for frets 1-5 are duplicated with the addition of a straight or curved bar through or above the cipher.

Distinct conventions were used by the printers of lute music in Germany for notating notes played on the sixth course,4 and the same conventions were also used by the scribes of hand-written manuscripts. In fact, the form of notation used in a manuscript may have a bearing on its place of origin or the influences on its owners or scribes resulting from the notation adopted by their teachers, or the prints they had access to. The scribes of all but two of the manuscripts represented here adopted the most common way of notating music on the sixth course (6<sub>1</sub> in the Table of ciphers above), using '1' (single strikethrough) (CH-Bu F.IX.70, CZ-Pmn XIII.B.237, D-B Mus.40141, Mus.Bd.A.678 & PL-LZu D/H 6983) or 'X' (D-LEm II.6.15 & DK-Kk Thott 841,4°) for the open sixth course, and then the letters 'B', 'C' and 'D' for first, second and third frets, etc. This form of notation was first used by the printer Hans Singriener in Wien for the lute books of Hans Judenkünig (c.1519 & 1523), and in 1552 by Ludwig Lück in Basel for the lute duet books Hans Jacob Wecker, and between 1556 and 1592 by Joannes and Andreas Eichorn in Frankfurt an der Oder, for the solo lute books of Benedict de Drusina, Matthäus Waissel, and the lute duet book of Gregorius Krengel.

The remaining two manuscripts (A-Lla hs.475 & D-Sl Mus.G.I.4) use an alternative form of notating the sixth course (62 in the Table of ciphers) with '4' for the open sixth course and then 'A', 'B' and 'C' for first, second and third frets, etc., and so frets on the sixth course are one letter different to 61. This form of notation was used in Nürnberg for the lute books published by Hans Neusidler between 1536 and 1549, as well as in Strasbourg by Bernhard Jobin for the lute books of Sixt Kargel and Melchior Neusidler.

Forty of the fantasias and recercars here are for 6-course lute (n° 1-3, 8, 13-16, 18-21, 24-26, 28, 30, 32, 37, 38, 41-43, 45, 47, 49, 50, 54, 55, 59, 60, 63, 64, 68, 73, 76, 77, 81, 83 & 86). Another thirty-eight require a lute with a seventh course tuned to F (n° 4-7, 9-12, 17, 22, 23, 29, 33-36, 39,

Guelf.18.7/III, and is also transcribed into French tablature here.

40, 44, 57, 58, 61, 65-67, 69-72, 75, 78-80, 82, 84, 85 & 88-90), and a further three a seventh course tuned to D (n° 52, 56 & 87). The remaining items comprise ten for an 8-course lute with 7th in F and 8th in D (n° 27, 31, 46, 48, 51-53, 62, 74 and 92) and one for a 8-course lute with a 7th in F, an 8th C (n° 91).<sup>5</sup>

Fantasias requiring a 7-course lute are found in manuscripts D-B 40141, D-KA Mus.Bd.A.678 & D-Sl Mus.G.I.4, and for 8-course lute in A-Lla hs.475, CH-Bu F.IX.70, D-LEm II.6.15 & PL-LZu D/H 6983.6 In all these manuscripts the open seventh course is notated as '\(\frac{1}{2}\)' (double strikethrough), the same as the only print in German tablature to use a seventh course, Melchior Neusidler's Teitsch Lautenbuch published by Bernhard Jobin in Strasbourg in 1574. In three fantasias from CH-Bu F.IX.70, the seventh course is stopped (n° 31, 39 & 27), for which the capital letters used for the sixth course are repeated with the addition of a hatch.7 The eighth course is uniformly notated as a '\(\frac{1}{2}\)' (triple strikethrough).

Genres

The lute solos in this edition are all but one titled fantasia [67],<sup>8</sup> fuga [16],<sup>9</sup> or recercar [8]<sup>10</sup> in the ten original manuscript sources (see the contents and commentary). N° 91 is the exception, as it is titled Kowalÿ, but is probably a fantasia. In some cases the same items are called fantasia and recercar in different sources,<sup>11</sup> and n° 28, 40, 45 & 74 are also called preludium, preambulum or preambel in concordant or cognate versions.<sup>12</sup> N° 21 is alternatively titled Fantasia and Capriccio<sup>13</sup> in the unique source.

Sources

The sources of music in this edition are the manuscripts CH-Bu F.IX.70, D-LEm II.6.15, D-Sl Mus.G.I.4 and PL-LZu D/H 6983. The remaining eleven items are found as a few in each of another six manuscripts, A-Lla hs.475, CZ-Pmn XIII.B.237, D-B Mus.40141, D-KA Mus.Bd.A.678, D-W Guelf.18.7, and DK-Kk Thott 841,4°. Brief descriptions of each source follows.

D-SI Mus.G.I.4 (26 items, n° 1-26) is a large manuscript of 224 folios copied in Southern Germany by a single scribe c.1595-1625. The manuscript was discovered in the Fürstlich Fürstenbergisches Hofbibliothek in Donaueschingen by Arthur Ness in the 1970s, and was acquired by the Bad Württenbergische Landesbibliothek in Stuttgart in recent years. The manuscript was not known to Wolfgang Boetticher in 1978, but was briefly described by Ernst Pohlmann in 1982 (Pohlmann, p. 141). An inventory with some concordances was published by Christian Meyer in 1994 (Meyer II, pp. 80-96), but no facsimile or modern edition has been published to date. The 350 compositions are divided into three books (I/II/III), a book each of mainly intabulations, abstract pieces and dances, respectively, and all copied in German tablature for 6-7- or 8- course lute. The titles of many of the pieces bear the initials of those who probably made the intabulations, 14 including H.F.D and I.G.B.D. Ness has recently argued persuasively that the initials Hieronymous Fabrum, Doctor, a physician from 1591 to 1608 at the Munich court of Duke Maximillian I (r.1579-1623), and the scribe who may have compiled and owned the manuscript, and Johann Georg Brencker or Brengger, Doctor (1559-1637), another court physician in Munich.<sup>15</sup> Two of the fantasias here (n° 18 and 21) are amongst seven pieces in the manuscript in which the title is written in part in Yiddish, a fusion of German and Ashkenazi Jewish dialects using the Hebrew alphabet, probably in the hand of Johann Hofstetter, a pupil of Melchior Neusidler

<sup>8</sup> Christopher Field 'Fantasia I. To 1700' New Grove 2 viii, pp. 545-554. A term for free form music first used in the 1480s, and appearing in printed lute sources from the 1530s, but developing into parody form based on vocal polyphonic models. No 1, 3-20, 23, 26 & 92 use the alternative spelling 'Phantasia' (and other sources of no 28, 34, 38, 41, 44, 45, 48, 58, 59, 65, 74, 76, 83 & 85). Mertel's Hortus Musicalis of 1615 heads a large section Phantasiae et Fugae and the music is numbered without titles, so not distinguishing between fantasia and fuga.

&lt;sup>9</sup> Paul Walker 'Fuga' New Grove 2 ix, p. 314. The term Fuga (Latin for flight) was first used in a list of vocal forms in Jacques de Liège's Speculum musicae (<1330), and was used in the fifteenth century until the early seventeenth century mainly for music in strict imitation. See nº 22, 51-53, 55-58, 61 & 68-74.

<sup>10</sup> John Caldwell 'Ricercare' New Grove 2 xxi, pp. 325-328, a term for free form music meaning 'to search for' in Italian, and first used in Francesco

Spinacino's Intabolatura de lauto libro primo, published in Venezia by Petrucci in 1507. Earlier preludial or rhapsodic recercars developed into imitative recercars as the sixteenth century progressed, becoming indistinguishable from fantasias. See nº 2, 24, 25, 49, 50 & 88-90.

&lt;sup>11</sup> Fantasia and recercar are used interchangeably in concordant sources of n° 1, 2, 28, 30, 45, 47, 49, 50, 63, 77 & 83. Also fuga and fantasia are used interchangeably, see n° 44, 58 & 65, and n° 83 is titled fantasia, fancie, fuga and recercar in concordant sources.

employed in Heidelberg in 1584 and later in Stuttgart. The title of n° 21 reads Capriccio del S<sup>r</sup> Santino da Parma followed by a phrase in Hebrew translating as Canzon Signor Lorenzin, which is very similar to Fantasia dj M Lorenzino Romanese written above the title in a different hand. N° 18 is titled Phantasia followed by a phrase in Hebrew that translates as [illegible word] Herr Christoph Fugger, 17 presumably a dedication to, or even a composition by, Christoph Fugger (1566-1615), whose father Hans Fugger (1531-1598) and grandfather Anton (1493-1560) represent a branch of the Augsburg patrician family of court finaciers.

CH-Bu F.IX.70 (24 items, n° 27-50) is another large manuscript, comprising 342 folios beginning with lute instructions and then divided into eight books of tablature by genre, the third book devoted to the 22 fantasias edited here (n° 27-48) and the fourth book including two recercars (n° 49-50). The music is copied in a single hand in German tablature for 6- to 9course lutes, and was begun in 1591 in Basel. The copyist was Emanuel Wurstisen, a student at Basel University 1586-1594, and the manuscript was acquired by Basel University in 1808 from the library of Johann Heinrich Brucker who was university librarian 1748-1753. The manuscript is not described in Boetticher or Pohlmann, but descriptions with inventories and concordances were published by John Kmetz in 1988, 18 and by Christian Meyer in 1991 (Meyer I, pp. 11-27). No facsimile or modern edition has been published to date.

D-LEm II.6.15 (24 items, n° 68-91) is the third of the great anthologies in German lute tablature from the end of the renaissance represented here. Although Lautenbuch des Albert Dlugorai is written on page 2 in a modern hand, there is no other reason to link the manuscript directly with this Polish composer other than the presence of a few pieces ascribed to him within it. The manuscript was described in Boetticher pp. 164-165 and Pohlmann, pp. 51 & 146, and the contents with some concordances were published by Christian Meyer (Meyer II, pp. 159-175). The manuscript was copied in German tablature dated 1619 by a German Protestant student in Leipzig. A facsimile edition was published by Tree Edition of Lübeck in 2001. Two volumes of a modern edition of transcriptions into French tablature by Herbert Speck (not including any of the music in the present edition) was also published by Tree Editions in 2004 and 2005.

The so-called Grässe manuscript (PL-LZu D/H 6983) (7 items, n° 51-57, all unique) was collected by Philip Spitta, administrative director of the Hochschule für Music in Berlin from 1875. Spitta's huge library was acquired by the Hochschule when he died in 1894. Pohlmann, p. 136 refers to it as in the Staatsbibliothek Preussicher Kulturbesitz, and Boetticher, p. 40 describes it as formerly in the Bibliothek der Staatslichen Hochschule für Music but missing since 1945. In fact a large proportion of the library of the Hochschule für Music was evacuated to Schloss Friedersdorf in Lower Silesia for safekeeping in 1943, and transferred to the then newly established University of Lódz in 1946.<sup>19</sup> However it was only in the 1980s that Western scholars became aware of the location of the Spitta collection, including the lute manuscript D/H 6983, through the researches of Tim Crawford. The manuscript comprises 107 folios of German tablature for 7-course lute which Boetticher claims bears the date 1588, and includes six fuga and a fantasia (n° 51-57 here) as well as 18 Preambulum (see inventory in Meyer III/2, pp. 157-159 - whose foliation is one out from the original). No facsimile or modern edition of the manuscript has been published to date.

A-Lla hs.475 (n° 61-62) begins with a title page that reads 'Michaël Eÿsertt Norinbergensis [Nürnberg] Possidet hunc summo cum Jure libellum quem rapiat nulla picata manus. C.D.S.W', and was copied in German tablature for 7-course lute  $\epsilon$ .1600. Boetticher did not include it, but Pohlmann, p. 147 describes it as the 'Linzer Lautenbuch'. The contents with concordances are listed in Meyer III/1, pp. 98-106, but no facsimile or modern edition have been published to date. The manuscript came from the Herrschafsarchiv in Aurolzmünster near Linz and is now in the Oberösterreichisches Landesarchiv The contents comprise intabulations of German Lied, many by Hans Leo Hassler, and is interspersed with English pavans and galliards including examples by John Dowland and Richard Alison, as well as the fuga (n° 61) and fantasia (n° 62) included here.

Národní Muzeum in Prague was copied by a student at the University of Prague in German tablature in the early seventeenth century, a second scribe adding further tablature with titles and additional text in Czech, c.1630. The student is probably named in the title to one of the lute solos, which reads Praeambulum Stephani Laurentij Jacobidis. The manuscript was briefly described in Boetticher, pp. 290-291 and Pohlmann, p. 157, and an inventory with some concordances was published by Christian Meyer (Meyer III/2, pp. 36-39). The manuscript is so badly damaged with pages jumbled up and some missing, and so much of the music is illegible or incomplete, that a facsimile or modern edition is unlikely to ever appear. However a list of contents with transcriptions of some of the music was published by Jiri Tichota,<sup>20</sup> and it was possible to transcribe two fantasias (n° 63 & 64, the latter lacking the opening bars).

The manuscript D-B Mus.40141 (n° 65-67) has been well known by scholars since the nineteenth century, and was described in Boetticher, pp. 23-24 and Pohlmann, p. 97. A list of contents with a few concordances was published by Christian Meyer in 1994 (Meyer II, pp. 35-39), and an inventory with extensive concordances is included in the recent facsimile edition (Glinde, Jarchow Verlag, 2010). An ex libris plate on the inside rear cover indicates it was part of the collection of Georg Poelchau in the Königliche Bibliothek in Berlin in 1842. The library holdings were evacuated between 1940 and 1945 first to Beuron Archabbey south of Stuttgart, and from there to Tubingen University where it remained from 1948 to 1964, before returning to the Staatsbibliothek Preußischer Kulturbesitz in Berlin. The letters ESRM and the date 1607 are stamped on the cover, presumably the initials of the original owner and date when the copying began. The name Johannes Naucleri and date 1615 was added in a different hand to the text on folio 0r, presumably a later owner, who was identified only recently. Ralf Jarchow deduced that Nauclerus is the Latinised form of the name Schiffer, identifying him as Johannes Schiffer who was born in Tondern near Hamburg in 1579, matriculated at the University of Rostock in 1605, and held posts as deacon in Medelby around 1612 and as pastor in Lindholm from 1619, where he remained until he died aged 76 in 1655. Most of the manuscript is copied in French tablature and Johannes Nauclerus was the principal scribe, a different scribe adding a section in German tablature (ff. 204v-264v) that includes three fantasias (n° 65-67).

D-KA Mus.Bd.A.678 (n° 58) is a manuscript bound in the sixteenth century with copies of Sebastian Ochsenkun's Tabulaturbuch auff die Lauten (Heidelberg, Fezandat, 1558) and Bernhart Jobin's Das Erst Buch (Strasbourg, Jobin, 1572), from the Abbey of Ettenheim-Münster near Strasbourg, and now in the Badische Landesbiblbiothek in Karlsruhe. The manuscript is described in Boetticher, p. 136 and Pohlmann, p. 144, and an inventory with some concordances was published by Christian Meyer (Meyer II, pp. 132-135). No facsimile or modern edition of the manuscript has been published to date. It begins with Latin instructions on intabulating vocal music for the lute and ends with a short description of tuning three lutes in consort. Between them is tablature for 67 lute solos copied in German tablature c.1596-1605, including a fuga (n° 58).

DK-Kk Thott 841,4° (n° 59-60) is the Lieder book of Petrus Fabricius (1587-1651), who was born in Tondern in Frisia and studied at Rostock University, in both respects coincident with Johannes Nauclerus so that the two must have been acquainted. The manuscript includes songs and lute solos copied c.1603-1609 while Petrus was a student at Rostock University and then pastor in Schleswig.<sup>21</sup> The manuscript is described in Boetticher, pp. 148-149 and Pohlmann, p. 56, and the contents were listed by Roland Wohlfart in 1989.<sup>22</sup> No facsimile or modern edition of the manuscript has been published to date. It contains two versions (n° 59 & 60) of a fantasia found in Waissel's Lautenbuch published in Frankfurt in 1592.

D-W Guelf. 18.7 & 18.8 (n° 92) is the lute book of the Augsburg merchant and art dealer Philipp Hainhofer (1578-1647), now in the Herzog-August Bibliothek in Wolfenbüttel. It is notated for 6- and 7-course renaissance lute in Italian not German tablature, but is the source of a recercar by Melchior Neusidler included as an appendix (n° 92). The manuscript was copied by Philipp himself beginning in  $\epsilon$ .1603-1604, after his return from two years in Italy during which time he studied Law at Padua University and took lute lessons with Nicolo Legname.<sup>23</sup> The lute book includes 367 lute solos on 1070 pages, and is divided into twelve separate sections (I-XII) according to genre, and bound in two separate volumes. It is briefly described in Boetticher, pp. 361-364 and Pohlmann p. 72, and an inventory with some concordances was published by Christian Meyer (Meyer II, pp. 302-316). A biography of Philipp Hainhofer and a thorough study of the manuscript with an inventory and exhaustive concordances was published by Joachim Lüdtke in 1999,24 but no facsimile or modern edition has been published to date.

Composers

An Italian influence permeates the fantasias and recercars represented in this edition. Fantasias and recercars of eighteen different composers can be identified, and of the forty-nine items ascribed to them in one or more sources, thirty-two are by nine of Italian origin, and the remaining seventeen are by eight composers from outside Italy. However, their compositions were presumably influenced by working in Italy, visiting Italy,<sup>25</sup> or exposure to prints and manuscripts of Italian music at home. Some ascriptions are doubtful because the same music is attibuted to more than one composer in different sources [n° 21, 28/45, 37, 41 and 82, described below]. The remaining forty-two items are anonymous as they lack any composers name in the surviving primary or concordant sources. There follows a brief biography of each composer represented here.

All fifteen solo fantasias from the print Intavolatura de Leuto de Ioanne Matelart Fiamengo Libro Primo published by Dorico in Roma in 1559 are included here [n° 3-17].<sup>26</sup> These versions were faithfully copied in D-Sl Mus.G.I.4 with the addition of bar lines that are absent in the print, as well as being notated for a lute with a seventh course tuned to F (assuming a lute in G-pitch).

Joan Matelart was a Flemish composer who probably went to Italy in 1558 and in 1565 was appointed Maestro di Capella at the Roman church of San Lorenzo in Domaso. He was born c.1535 and so composed the fantasias in his midtwenties.<sup>27</sup> He also published Responsoria, antiphonae et hymni in processionibis per annum for voices à4 and à5 in 1596, and madrigals by him are found in other prints and manuscripts.<sup>28</sup> He died in Roma in 1607.

Francesco Canova da Milano (1497-1543) is the most famous composer represented here, by 6 recercars and fantasias: n° 2 (Ness App. 31),<sup>29</sup> 28/45 (Ness 84/App.14), 30 (Ness 75), 63 (Ness 2), 83 (Ness 33). He was born near Monza, about 15 km Northeast of Milan and employed at the papal court in Roma intermittently from 1513 probably until his death in 1543.30 In 1535 he accompanied Pope Paul III on a trip to Nice for a meeting between the Holy Roman Emperor Charles V and Francis I, King of France. It seems likely that Francesco met Francis' court lutenist Albert de Rippe on this occasion, and that Francesco spent further time in France leading to the ascription of some of his fantasias to Francesco da Parigi in the Siena lute book (NL-DHnmi Kluis A 20). Francesco's music appeared in prints and manuscripts from all over Europe beginning in the 1530's and continuing for nearly a century after his death. No 2 was considered a doubtful composition of Francesco (Ness App. 31) until the Castelfranco Venuto manuscript [I-CFVd w.s.] was discovered, which includes a version of the same fantasia with ascription. Both versions appear corrupt in places and the version in D-Sl Mus.G.I.4 has been reconstructed here with reference to both versions. Fantasia n° 28, which is the same as no 45, is ascribed to Francesco da Milano (Ness 84) in one source but was included in the print of Julio Maria da Crema (Ness App. 14), and ascribed to da Crema in Hans Gerle's print of 1552. As da Crema seems to have intabulated many of his fantasias from ensemble music of Julio Segni da Modena, it seems likely he has also used a composition of Francesco's in this case. No 28 and 45 are from the same manuscript, the former concordant with the versions of Francesco da Milano and da Crema, but with many variant readings, the latter a more embellished setting. Fantasia nº 30 is quite a different and more embellished version of a fantasia ascribed to Francesco da Milano (Ness 75) in the Cavalcanti lute book [B-Br II.275] and nº 63 is an embellished and incomplete version of a fantasia ascribed to Francesco da Milano (Ness 2) in a variety of prints and manuscripts. No 83 is undoubtably a fantasia by Francesco da Milano, ascribed in nine prints and manuscripts (Ness 33), so that the ascription to Gregory Huwet (see below) in D-LEm II.6.15 can only be an error or an indication of the version transmitted by Huwet, surviving in a concordant but corrupt form.

Giovanni Maria da Crema was presumably from Crema near Cremona in Lombardy. He published two lute books in Venezia, the first in 1546 in two separate editions, one by Antonio Gardano and the other presumed to be by Girolamo Scotto, and the second published by Scotto in 1548.31 Nothing else is known about him, unless he is the Zuan Maria da Cremona who was one of six viol players who arrived at the court of Henry VIII in Westminster from Venice in 1540, and returned to Italy in 1541.<sup>32</sup> He describes himself in the title pages of his prints as musician and lutenist and claims to have composed the music in the first print, and intabulated music by Francesco da Milano and Julio Segni da Modena in the second. However, several of the fifteen recercars in the first book are also known to have been composed by Francesco da Milano or Giulio Segni da Modena, so it seems likely that he only intabulated the music in both prints. As explained above, the fantasia in two versions here as no 28 and 45, seems to be an arrangement of one composed by Francesco da Milano (Ness 84). No 77 is related to, but quite different from, recercar ottavo in da Crema's 1546 print, and it is not known whether the version here was also composed or intabulated by him. A modern edition of the lute ricercars of Julio da Modena/Joan Maria da Crema was published in best known for his fantasia in Varietie of Lute Lessons published by Robert Dowland in 1610, and for the galliard based on the Walsingham tune often bearing the name Gregory in numerous continental lute manuscripts. It has been suggested that Huwet was English as he is called 'der Engländer' in the Wolfenbüttel court records, but the ascription to the fantasia in Robert Dowland's Varietie of Lute-lessons (London, 1610) reads 'Gregorio Huwet of Antwerpe' and Matthäus Reymann refers to him in Noctes Musicae (Heidelberg, 1598) as 'Gregorius Hovvet Belga' which fits with archival research showing that his family was from Huy near Liège in Belgium and that his father Gregorius, also a lutenist, became a citizen of Antwerpe in 1560. In the dedications to Hortus Musicalis Novus (Strasbourg, 1615), Elias Mertel refers to Huwet as 'qui germanis celebres' although the latter probably stems from his long association with the court at Wolfenbüttel. Huwet was appointed as lutenist to Henry Julius, Duke of Brunswick at Wolfenbüttel in May 1591 and is listed as a court musician until 1616. However, after 1614 the post of court lutenist was discontinued and he played in the orchestra under the direction of Michael Praetorius. John Dowland praised Huwet (and Alexandro Horologio) in The First Booke of Songs or Ayres (London, 1597) 'for their loue to me, as also for their excellency in their faculties', following his visit to Wolfenbüttel in 1594. Huwet and Dowland then travelled together to perform in Kassel for Moritz Landgrave of Hesse, probably in 1595, where they presumably met Victor Montbuysson who was court lutenist there 1592-1627. A letter records that Prince Moritz thought Huwet was unsurpassed in the playing of motets and madrigals on the lute. The lute instructions in a manuscript into which Johann Stobäus of Königsberg made an album amicorum entry<sup>35</sup> credits Huwet with adopting a new right hand thumb technique, and he must have been a renowned lute teacher as Christian IV of Denmark sent him a pupil in 1606. A modern edition of music ascribed to Huwet was published in 1998.<sup>36</sup>

Melchior Neusidler was born to a musical family in Nürnberg in the early 1530s.37 He was the eldest son of Hans Neusidler the lutenist, editor and publisher of six lute books, some in more than one edition, between 1536 and 1549.<sup>38</sup> Melchior was the leading figure in renaissance lute music in Germany in the second half of the sixteenth century. He left Nürnberg in 1552 and moved to Augsburg where he acquired citizenship and married. Within a few years of his arrival he was leader of a group of chamber musicians, rehearsing three times a week and performing at banquets and weddings, as well as in the semipublic halls of the merchants' guild, spending three decades in Augsburg. The group also performed in the private homes of patricians including the Fuggers, the leading Augsburg family. Melchior went to Italy in 1563, and was in Venezia in 1566 to supervise the publication of his first two lute books, Il Primo and Il Secondo Libro Intabolatura di Liuto di Melchior Neysidler Alemano, Sonatore di Liuto in Augusta, published by Antonio Gardane and printed in Italian tablature. In 1574 he was in Strasbourg, aged around fifty, where he edited music for Bernhard Jobin and supervised the printing in German tablature of his Teutsch Lautenbuch. In September 1580 appointmed lutenist in Innsbruck at the court of Archduke Ferdinand II (1529-1595), brother of Emperor Maximilian II. However, he was dismissed in May 1581 for eating meat during lent. He suffered from gout in his later years and received a pension from his patron Octavian Fugger II. He died in his sixties sometime before 1597. In the preface to his Teutsch Lautenbuch of 1574, Melchior advocated the use of a sevencourse lute, and two of his fantasias here (n° 34 & 87) are for 7-course lute, and another two (no 62 & 92) for 8-course lute.

Melchior is represented in this edition by five fantasias (one twice) ascribed to him by name or initials in three manuscripts.<sup>39</sup> His fantasias and recercars are accomplished but generally difficult to play, although no 34, 62 and 92, not found in his prints, are some of the best and easiest to play and all fine examples of the genre. No 34 is closely concordant with an anonymous version in Mertel's Hortus Musicalis from 1615. Fantasia nº 62 is long and shows Melchior's fully developed style without being difficult to play. It is known from two concordant versions both ascribed, the one here from the Eysertt lute book [A-Lla hs.475] and the other in the English manuscript GB-Cu Add.3056. No 92 is not in German tablature in the unique source, but is included here as the only one of his 23 fantasias and recercars not known from a version in German tablature.<sup>40</sup> The remaining two fantasias are of doubtful ascription, N° 41, which is the same as n° 87, is ascribed to Melchior Neusidler in four sources including his own print, but to Fabritio Dentice in Thesaurus Harmonicus, presumably an error.<sup>41</sup> This version is closely concordant with the one in Melchior's print.

Fabritio Dentice was born in Naples c.1530, and his father was Luigi Dentice, an aristocrat and lutenist at the court of Ferranti Sanseverino, Prince of Salerno in Naples. Fabritio spent some time in Spain with his father and in 1564 was heard singing and accompanying himself on the lute in Barcelona according to a report by the English ambassador to Spain. Fabritio lived for some time in Roma and was employed in the Farnese court in Parma from 1569 until he died in 1581.42 All his known lute solos have been published in a modern edition. 43 N° 37 is ascribed to Melchior Neusidler in one source, and to Laurencini (Lorenzino Tracetti, see below) in two others, and stylistically fits better into the canon of music by Lorenzino.

Albert Dlugoraj (1557/8->1619) was a Polish lutenist and composer.<sup>44</sup> The Latin form of his name 'Albertus' is used in some sources and the Polish equivalent of his first name is 'Wojciech', although he is sometimes refered to as 'Adalbert', probably in error as this is a different name. In a document in Kraków dated 12 May 1580 his name is appended 'Gostinensis', that is, from Gostyn, which refers to many places in Poland, and that he was then aged 22 indicating that he was born in 1557/8. He was trained as lutenist in the household of the Polish aristocrat Samuel Zborowski, but left in 1579, joining the monastery of the Order of St. Francis in Kraków in 1580 only to be expelled in 1581. He was forced to return to the Zborowski household briefly, before being appointed lutenist at the court of the Polish King Stefan Batory. It seems Zborowski showed him much cruelty and Dlugoraj retaliated by revealing compromising letters to the king in 1583, leading to Zborowski's execution. There is no trace of Dlugoraj after king Stefan died in 1586 and so it is not known where he spent the rest of his life, how long he lived or where he died. His known music has been edited. 45 N° 27 is a variant form of a fantasia that well exemplifies his unusual compositional style, but in which the rhythmic complexity has been simplified compared with the other version found in Besard's Thesaurus Harmonicus. Besard's version has been used in the reconstruction of the corrupt reading of rhythms in the opening bars in CH-Bu F.IX.70. Closely concordant versions of both no 74 and 85 are found in Mertel's Hortus Musicalis of 1615. The title of recercar nº 88 probably refers to Albert Dlugoraj, although the copying is so corrupt that it is unplayable and certainly does not represent the composer at his best.

Diomedes Cato was born in Italy in 1555. His father Constantino was a teacher in Serravalle near Treviso in the Veneto in about 1562 and relocated the family to Kraków around 1565. Diomedes is recorded as lutenist at the Kraków court of King Sigismund III [1566-1632] of Poland for the period 20 March 1588 until August 1593. In 1593/4 he accompanied Sigismund on a journey to Sweden, where he was celebrated as one of the best-known foreign composers. He is last mentioned in court records around 1602, and about this time his patron Stanisław Kostka left him a substantial legacy. He is recorded as playing the lute on 21 March 1619, although the evidence does not seem to survive, and he died in Gdańsk/Danzig on 27 April 1628.46 He was praised by Jean-Baptiste Besard in the preface to Thesaurus Harmonicus (Köln, 1603),<sup>47</sup> and in a dedicatory poem by Christoph Hunichius in Johann Rude's Flores Musicae (Heidelberg, 1600).<sup>48</sup> A Tombeau by Ennemond Gauthier published in 1672 transcribes seven bars of a fantasia by Diomedes,<sup>49</sup> and the poem in Rude praising Diomedes is quoted by Ernst Gottlieb Baron in the eighteenth century.<sup>50</sup> As well as more than sixty surviving lute solos,<sup>51</sup> vocal, keyboard and consort music ascribed to him also survive. No 51, 52 and 86 are the only known versions of three short and characteristic fantasias by Diomedes.

The lute music ascribed to Lorenzino/ Laurencini is now known to have been com-posed by Lorenzino Tracetti (c.1550/2-1590).<sup>52</sup> Son of a singer of Flemish origin, he was born in the early 1550's and died in July 1590. From 1570 to 1572, he belonged to the chapel of Cardinal Ippolito II d'Este, led by Palestrina. In 1574 Roland de Lassus tried to hire him for the chapel of the Duke of Bavaria, and perhaps he spent a short time employed in Munich, but it seems that the remainder of his life was spent as a respected lute teacher in Roma. He was created a knight of the Golden Spur in Roma, which explains some of the ascriptions to his music: 'Knight of the Lute', 'equitis aurati Laurencini civi Romani', 'Equitis Romani', 'Cavaglier del Liuto' and 'Cauallier du Luth'. Fifty two of his lute solos are found in Jean Baptiste Besard's Thesaurus Harmonicus of 1603, which is dedicated to 'Laurencini Romani', and Besard claims in the preface that he studied with Laurencini.53 Only a partial modern edition of Lorenzino's music has been published to date, comprising thirty of the around ninety known lute solos.<sup>54</sup> N° 37 is ascribed to both Lorenzino and Melchior Neusidler, as described above, and stylistically it fits better into the canon of music by Lorenzino and so was probably composed by him. Nº 21 bears an ascription to both Lorenzino [Tracetti] and Santino [Garsi] da Parma in the title of the unique source, and it is not possible to deduce which of them composed it.55 It is very long at 122 bars, and falls into sections and is more like a series of practice studies. Santino Garsi da Parma [Santino detta La Garsa, Santino detta Valdes] (1542-1604) [nº 21] was born in Parma in 1542 and died also in Parma in 1604. He studied in Roma but was ordered back to Parma by Duke Ranuccio I Farnese who appointed him lutenist and teacher in 1594, posts he held until his death in 1604.56 A modern edition of most of his music, but not n° 21 here, was published in 1989.<sup>57</sup>

Two fantasias (one in two versions) are ascribed to the otherwise unknown composers Jud[en] Wormaciensis [Worms] [n° 44] and Juden von Mainz [n° 67 & 80]. As Worms is about 40 km south of Mainz, it seems likely that the names refer to the same composer. One of the fantasias [nº 44] is a version of a fantasia known from ten sources [including n° 58 and 65 here], and assumed to be by Emanuel Adriaensen as it appears in his print Pratum Musicum of 1584 and the second edition in 1600 (n° 58 and 65 are also anonymous versions). However, it is possible that Adriaenssen was collector or arranger and not composer of at least some of the fantasias in his prints, so that there is no reason to doubt the ascription.<sup>58</sup> The title and ascription to no 44 is followed by the letters G.L., which could be the initials of the person who made the lute arrangement from music for other instruments composed by Juden Wormaciencsis, although G.L. could also refer to something other than a name. All the versions have an ambiguous reading of barring or rhythm in the region of bar 30, which is uniquely but not very satisfactorily, resolved with a bar of minims in the present version.  $N^{\circ}$  67 and 80 are closely concordant versions of a highly imitative fantasia, but both are corrupt, the latter lacking rhythm signs, and have been reconstructed.

Jean Baptiste Besard (c.1567-1625) was born in Besançon and graduated in Law at the nearby University of Dôle in 1587. He studied medicine in Roma, where he also claimed in the preface of his Thesaurus Harmonicus he studied lute with Lorenzino [Tracetti], probably during the period 1587 to 1592.59 He is also recorded in Hessen where he taught lute.<sup>60</sup> He travelled to Köln around the end of November 1596, where he took on about twenty lute students. He wrote a large compendium of medical knowledge, Antrum philosophicum (Augsburg, 1617), in which he refers to a shared interest in the liberal arts with Philipp Hainhofer twenty years earlier. In March 1597, Besard met Hainhofer in Köln, the latter becoming one of Besard's students. Besard was in Köln in 1600-1601, when he copied lute music with dates into the manuscript of an unnamed pupil [PL-Kj 40143]. He was married in Besançon in 1602 but was back in Köln for the publication of his anthology Thesaurus Harmonicus by Gerard Grevenbruch in 1603. He then lived in Augsburg from 1604 until 1617, the year in which his second lute book Novus Partus and his lute manual Isagoge in artem testudinariam were published by David Francum. He was in Augsburg in 1617 where he gave lute lessons and resumed his acquaintance with Philipp Hainhofer. Besard left Augsburg and met Hainhofer again in Leipzig later that year, but nothing more is known about him after that. Besard collected most of the music for his prints, but also composed, or arranged, many himself as around 60 are ascribed to him, including the fantasia nº 75 here, which survives in multiple versions, all requiring some degree of editorial reconstruction.61 composer and lutenist.62 He may have been the 'Pierre Paul dit l'Italien' who was one of the valets de chambre to François I king of France 1531-1534 and described as superintendent of works at the royal châteaux although not referred to as a musician, which fits with Borrono not being a professional musician but a gentleman amateur. From around 1535 he lived in the parish of S. Pietro ad linteum in Milan and during 1542-1544 he was a diplomatic agent of Alfonso d'Avalos, imperial governor of Milan, then in 1550 was a soldier of the Castello Sforzesco in Milan. In 1551 Cardinal Alessandro Farnese is recorded as accusing Borrono of organising an attempt on his life. Borrono also remained an agent of another imperial governor of Milan, Ferrante Gonzaga, until the end of 1552. He and his son Giovanni Battista were mentioned in lawsuits in 1544 and 1559 and Borrono as 'septuagenarian and infirm' in 1564. In 1573, he was mentioned in a deed referring to his son, in a way suggesting he was still alive. A collected modern edition of his music based on the prints that contain his music was published in 2008, and many concordances not listed in the edition are found in manuscript sources.<sup>63</sup> One of the eight fantasias in Borrono's prints from the 1540s was copied into D-Sl Mus.G.I.4 in the late sixteenth century [n° 19] with the addition of embellish-ments to the opening theme and a section towards the end.

Jacob de Retz was a Polish lutenist and composer born c.1550. He was brought from Poland to Paris by Henryk Walezy when the latter became Henry III of France in 1574, and Jacob was employed as 'valet de chambre ordinaire du roi' to Henry III until he died in 1589 and then to Henry IV until Jacob's death in c.1605. A fantasia Composed by the most famous Iacobus Reis of Augusta: Lutenist to the most mightie and victorius Henricus 4 French King in Robert Dowland's Varietie of Lute Lessons from 1610, confirms Jacob as royal lutenist at the French court, but gives his origin as Augsburg. He is known from the lute sources as Jakub Polak, Jacques Pollonois, or Jacob Reis, Rais, Reys or de Retz, the latter probably referring to his patron Albert de Gondi (1522-1602), count and then duke of Retz, who probably came to France from Poland with Henry. He is praised in surviving contemporary documents as one of the foremost lutenists of the day and Jacobus gente Polonus' is mentioned in a dedicatory poem in the preface to Mertel's Hortus Musicalis of 1615. Over 60 compositions by Jacob survive. A modern edition published in 1951 reproduced the music from the printed sources, and a complete modern edition was published in 1993.64 No 40 here is a cognate version of one of the preludes ascribed to Jacob Reis in Besard's Thesaurus Harmonicus. It is a very different arrangement of the same material, and may represent a parody by another composer, or else lie within the latitude of how Jacob may have reworked and performed it himself.

The lute solos ascribed to Casparo Poloni or Polachi, including the unique polyphonic fantasia n° 26 here, were probably composed by Kasper Sielecki who is recorded as lutenist during 1588-1591 at the Kraków court of the Vasa King Sigismund III of Poland (ruled 1587-1632).<sup>65</sup> He is also most likely the boy Kasper recorded in documents from 1583-1586 who was learning the lute at the court of the previous Polish King Stefan Batory (reigned 1576-86). If so, then he was probably taught by Albert Dlugoraj (1557/8->1619) who was court lutenist 1583-1586. His known music has been edited.<sup>66</sup>

Perino Fiorentino Perino Fiorentino also known as Pierino degli Organi (1523-1552) was the son of a prominent Florentine organist and composer. By 1537, and at the age of thirteen he was a servant and student of Francesco da Milano and in the service of Pope Paul III in Roma.<sup>67</sup> Perino is recorded as maestro in papal records 1546-1548, probably as the Pope's master lutenist after Francesco died in 1543. Only 14 fantasias and two vocal intabulations by Perino are known, and were edited for a modern edition in 1996.<sup>68</sup> N° 1 here is virtually identical to the printed sources, in which it is assigned the prominent place of the first of Perino's fantasias.

Bologna [Pomponius Bononiensis] suggest he was active as a composer at the end of the sixteenth and beginning of the seventeenth centuries, but there is no additional documentary information to identify who he was. Despite the difference in name, he may be the same person as Pompeius Bononiensis recorded Transilvanian court during the autumn of 1593. It is possible that he can be identified with Pompeo da Panico who served as 'musico' in the Cappella di San Petronio in Bologna during 1592. Panico is a small town in the mountain area south of Bologna. Pompeo di Girolamo da Modena recorded at the Medici Court in Florence in 1593 is probably a different lutenist from the same period. In addition to the unique fantasia reproduced here [nº 46], his other extant music amounts only to four gagliardas, a setting of the passomezzo antico, and of the battaglia, all for solo lute and edited in a modern edition.<sup>69</sup>

A book of lute solos entitled Raphaelis Violae Carminum pro Testudine liber, continens fantasia mutetas, Gallicas & Italicas Cantiones was published in Louvain in 1575, and probably reprinted in 1580,<sup>70</sup> probably by Phalèse and Bellère, although no copies of either are known today. However, two fantasias ascribed to Raphael Viola are known, one in the German tablature manuscript D-LEm II.6.15 (a concordant version also in Mertel 1615), and so included here as no 76. The second was included by Pierre Phalèse in all three editions of his anthology Theatrum Musicum published in 1563, 1568 and 1571. These two fantasias may have appeared in the lost print. Raphael Viola was presumably Italian, although the publication of his music in Louvain over a period of 17 years suggests he may have been resident in the Low Countries and recent reseach of Godelieve Spiessens identified a Raphael Viola from Cremona recorded as a merchant or surveyor who gained citizenship of Antwerp in 1558.<sup>71</sup> His wife may have been English, as he was England in 1567 to settle the estate of her parents. He sold his house in Antwerp in 1569 after which there is no trace of him. Although not a professional musician, it is possible that this Raphael Viola was an amateur lutenist and composer who cooperated with Pierre Phalèse in the publication of his music. Although extensively reconstructed from the corrupt source, no 76 reveals a lutenist-composer of great merit.

The forty-two anonymous items include many highly accomplished examples of the genre [e.g. n° 20, 22, 23, 31, 33, 35, 36, 70 & 89], and so it is tantalising to wonder whether the composers are among those we know but their association with the music has been lost, or else they were prominent composers whose names are not known to us now. Some are reminiscent of the best found in Italian prints of the first half of the sixteenth century [n° 18, 29, 42, 50, 81], and one wonders if they are from prints now lost. The standard of fantasia varies between sources, and it is fortunate that manuscripts CH-Bu F.IX.70 and D-Sl Mus.G.I.4 have survived because of the quantity and quality of the fantasias they contain.

The ninety-two items in this edition (combined with the fifty-five in Vol. II) are a testament to the range and diversity of fantasias and recercars composed during the sixteenth century that found their way into lute manuscripts copied in German tablature, and presents a modern anthology of some of the best and most rewarding to play, as well a few of the worst and most difficult examples of the genre (e.g. n° 56, 57, 61).

Editorial Method

The music in this edition is for solo lute in renaissance, vieil ton, tuning with six courses tuned G c f a d' g' (intervals of ffeff between courses from the first), assuming a lute in G pitch, plus diapasons. The tablature was typeset using Wayne Cripps TAB programme v.4.3.73 running on an Apple Intel Core i5 iMac with system OS X 10.7.4.

The transcriptions adhere to the German tablature in the sources, except that obvious errors have been altered and recorded in the commentary. Editorial alterations are recorded by reference to what appears in the original source followed by what it has been changed to editorially. The location of changes in the tablature are indicated by the bar number and position of the note or chord in the bar, followed by the fret and course of the note or notes on the lute. For example, 1/2 refers to the second note or chord in the first bar, and c4 indicates the second fret on the fourth course. Chords are indicated by juxtaposed notes (for example a1b2d3c4a5 for a 5-note chord), and melodic sequences are separated by hyphens, for example a2-b2-d2-a1 for a rising 4-note melody on the upper two courses of the lute.

All the music is transcribed into French

tablature from German tablature, and the rhythm signs standardised to flag-style (rhythm signs shown only when rhythm changes or at the beginning of staves). The rhythm signs used are the renaissance system consisting of vertical lines with sloping hatches, none for semibreves, one for minims, two for crotchets, three for quavers or four for semiquavers. Time signatures present in original sources are omitted here, except to show changes within a composition. No ornaments and vertical or horizontal ties are found in the original tablature and so none are included in the transcriptions. Notes to be held (tenuto) are included only in n° 30 and are shown as 'x' to the right of the tablature letter. Right hand fingering occurs in sixteen items of the music in the original tablature (n° 1, 17, 22, 25, 26, 28, 29, 37, 40, 43-45, 61, 62 and 92) and has been reproduced in the transcription as a dot under a tablature letter to indicate striking the note with the right index finger and two dots for the middle finger (n° 37). The commentary includes an inventory of the music together with concordant and cognate versions, the latter preceded by 'cf.'.
